

The Shiny Treasure

As I soar above the ocean
My wings guiding me gently on the currents
All I see beneath me
Is the of magnificence the sea

Sparkling objects,
catching the sun's beautiful rays.
Shiny treasures,
glistening just beneath the waves.

I sing out to my friends gleefully!
Come join and see what treasures lie just below the water's surface.

We circle and dive to see who can capture the shiniest prize.
Grabbing the alluring riches
In our beaks and claws
As fast as birdly possible.

We race to see who can gobble their loot the fastest.
But wait! What did we just eat?
Was it a beautiful treasure
Or a deadly treat.

Our stomachs answer with despair.
Sick, dying, dead.
Birds falling from the sky.

Why must man
Turn our oceans into their trash can?
Harming us without a care.
Those beautiful treasures
The beginning of our demise.

Elijah Davis
Chicago, IL
2015, Junior, Poetry
& Spoken Word